

PGA Golf Professional Hall of Fame

The PGA Golf Professional Hall of Fame Class of 2009: (from left) Brian Whitcomb; Harry "Cotton" Berrier; the late Claude Harmon represented by sons Butch, Billy and Craig; Eddie Merrins; the late Harvey Penick represented by son Tinsley; Don Essig III; Jim Manthis and Brent Krause.

The PGA Golf Professional Hall of Fame originated in 1940 at the suggestion of famed sportswriter Grantland Rice. Most of the original inductees were later enshrined at the PGA World Golf Hall of Fame in Pinehurst, N.C.

The PGA Golf Professional Hall of Fame originated in 1940 at the suggestion of famed sportswriter Grantland Rice. Most of the original inductees were later enshrined at the PGA World Golf Hall of Fame in Pinehurst, N.C.

In 1993, The PGA of America ceased PGA World Golf Hall of Fame operations in Pinehurst and subsequently relocated to the World Golf Hall of Fame in St. Augustine, Fla. While all of the Pinehurst-enshrined members were transferred to the new World Golf Hall of Fame, there were some members of the PGA Hall of Fame who were not recognized at the new facility at the World Golf Village.

In 2003, The PGA opened the PGA Historical Center [now PGA Museum of Golf] at PGA Village in Port St. Lucie, Fla., paving the way for the first home for the PGA Golf Professional Hall of Fame. It is the highest honor that The PGA of America can bestow upon its membership. The inaugural ceremony was conducted Sept. 8, 2005.

With the establishment of this Hall of Fame, the Association recognizes all PGA members who have made significant and lasting contributions to the building of The PGA of America and the game of golf.

The next class in the PGA Golf Professional Hall of Fame will be inducted in November 2011.
